SLAYER KILLED
IN PRISON YARDDIES, PROTESTING
HE IS INNOCENT

Utah Attorney Meets
Death Calmly by Firing Squad

SENDS LAST KISS
TO HIS MOTHER

Every Effort to Stay
Execution Ends
in Failure

(Associated Press)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 18—Omer B. Woods, lawyer and convicted wife murderer, was executed by a firing squad at the Utah state prison here at 8:15 o'clock this morning. He met death calmly and protested his innocence to the last.

The killing of Mrs. Woods occurred in an apartment house here January 9, 1922.

Every known means of staying an execution was employed by Woods and his lawyers, but all efforts failed.
Woods' alleged crime, that of slaying
an invalid wife, then attempting to set fire to the bed upon which her body was reposing is listed among the most gruesome of the west, and the evidence against Woods seemed so strong to the members of the trial jury, to the members of the supreme court who reviewed the case, to the governor and the board of pardons, that each of these passed solemn sentence that Woods was guilty and must pay the supreme penalty which the Utah law exact.

As Woods was brought out of his cell to be taken to the courtyard, to face the firing squad, he told newspaper reporters "I have tried as best I could to give an exact explanation to the pardon board in every particular.
I believe, and it is my dying statement
that A. C. Vadney, of Council, Idaho, was the killer of the two brothers who killed Mrs. Woods. I am as innocent today as the day I was born. I am prepared to meet my maker in peace. My conscience is free and clear.
I have never, in all my life, harmed
my wife or any other human being for that matter. I consider the pardon board had only one idea, and that was that I was guilty.

"It seemed to be so paramount that it could not be moved."

After Woods had been placed in the death chair and the hood adjusted, he again called for the newspaper men
and said:

"The last thing that I do is to send a kiss to my mother and sister and to my daughter."

These were the last words of Woods.

The firing squad blazed away at 8:16 a. m. and Woods' pulse stopped 30 seconds later. He was officially pronounced dead one minute and 50 seconds later. A brother of Woods, from Washington, D. C., was at the prison and claimed the body, which will be sent to Tennessee for burial.

Mrs. R. W. Hendrix
Dies at Cloverdale

Funeral services for Mrs. R. W.
Hendrix, the mother of Clyde Hendrix,
will be held at her late residence at Cloverdale, near Florence, shortly after two o'clock Saturday. Mrs. Hendrix passed away Thursday night after several days illness. Clyde Hendrix went to the bedside of his mother on Tuesday.

Following the funeral services interment will be in that family burying ground at Cloverdale. The deceased is survived by her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Guy Paulk of Cloverdale and three sons, Percy R. Hendrix, who is in the lumber business at Camp Hugh,
Ala., Clyde Hendrix, president of the Tennessee Valley Bank and W. H.
Hendrix, a newspaper man of Memphis.

Above is the latest photograph
of "Bonesetter" Reese, of Youngs-

"Dr. Lorenz of America." A Welshman, he came to America a poor immigrant, having learned something of bloodless surgery in England. He went to work in the Youngstown steel mills and attended all the injured workmen.
His fame now crosses both continents, and he has treated such men as Theodore Roosevelt, David Lloyd George, Fred Stone, Pat
Keeney, Hans Wagner, "Home Run" Baker, Ty Cobb and Charles Evens Hughes. He is immensely rich, but, remembering his own lean days, makes no charge to poor patients.

JANUARY FREEZE
KILLED OAT CROP

(Associated Press)

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 18—The freeze
of January 5 killed oats in the ground in most of the southeast, except Florida, according to a mid-month crop report from the states of North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida and Georgia, issued today by the United States department of agriculture.

"Part of the oats may come out,
the report stated, "if weather conditions are favorable. On account of the failure of this crop a prospective shortage of feed is already effecting
the plans for the farmers in Georgia."

FORD BUYS THE SCHOOLHOUSE
WHERE HE STUDIED AS A YOUTH

(Associated Press)

DETROIT, Jan. 18—The Little Red Schoolhouse, where Henry Ford, half a century ago picked up what limited "book learning" his youth yielded him, has been purchased by the Detroit manufacturer, it was learned today.

The school, typical of hundreds of others in use 50 years ago, with sharp sloping roof, bell cupola in front and short steps leading to the door, has not been in use in two years. The windows are broken, the bell that used to peal its summons to "Ford's oldest boy, Hank," is crusted with dust and the lot on which the school stands is neglected.

It was not explained what Ford plans to do with the school house, which is on Warren avenue, a few miles out of Detroit and two miles from the farm on which Ford lived during his boyhood days.

Arriving on Thursday's afternoon
train, Right Eminent Sir W. O. Snyder, Past Grand Commander of the Grand Commandery of Alabama, last night inspected DeMolay Commandery
No. 14 Knights Templar of Albany.

Following the ceremonies of raising Sir Knights P. B. Hale, E. Ted Sheppard and R. T. Sheppard, Sir Knight Snyder took occasion to say that though he had often witnessed the conferring of the degree it was only rarely that he had seen it conferred better and it would be his pleasure to make a good and very, very favorable report of this commandery. In a brief address he expressed his appreciation of the cordial welcome given him and the pleasure of being here. He called attention to the task taken by Masons in adopting 500 war orphans and the preliminary steps being taken looking toward matters educational of which all boys and girls of this country will have the benefit, for which a fund
of $500,000 is to be raised to be paid to boys and girls seeking education.

Through this channel a permanent and lasting endowment will be made to education.

The speaker said no man could become a Sir Knight and take the obligations without being the better for it.
During the evening Past Grand Commander of the Grand Commandery of Alabama, T. H. Matlocks was heard in a short address with profit
and advantage to the Sir Knights present at the close the members adjoined to the Palace Cafe where a lunch was enjoyed.

SPEAKER STRESSES
LAW ENFORCEMENT

Well Attended Meeting
Held at the Central
M. Methodist Church

MRS. PERKINS IS VERY IMPRESSIVE

Consistent Efforts to Enforce Law Are Necessary

At a mass meeting held at the Central Methodist church Thursday night,
attended by a representative audience
of those in the Twin Cities especially interested in law enforcement, Mrs.
Maud B. Perkins, of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, was the principal speaker. At the close of Mrs. Perkins' address, when the chairman of the meeting, Miss Ellen Groendyke, asked for short voluntary addresses, Rev. S. D. Monroe, pastor of the First Baptist church of Albany,
spoke for a few minutes declaring Mrs. Perkins' addresses for practical value, was superior to similar addresses he had heard from Frances E. Willard, Mrs. Armour, and other prominent leaders of the W. C. T. U.

"Since the American people have spoken against the liquor traffic,"
said Mrs. Perkins near the opening of her address and "unless the 18th amendment is upheld, then God is dead."

In illustrating duty to law enforcement, the speaker said that at a recent meeting on law enforcement, the speaker stated that the only persons
she knew of, who had broken the law
in the town where she spoke were two "uplifters" who were "speeders," and that when the meeting was over, one of them, remonstrated with the speaker, excusing himself by saying: "Well,
I had to drive fast; I was on my way to the prison to lecture the prisoners
on 'law enforcement.'"

Mrs. Perkins took the ground throughout her address, that consistant efforts must be made by all the people, if the laws are enforced. Mrs.
Perkins said that while the people were for prohibition and would never give it up, they were too easy and careless as to law enforcement.

Mrs. H. O. Troup had charge of the music. Rev. Noble R. Edwards, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, read
the opening scripture lesson. Rev. E.
H. Roy offered the opening prayer.
Miss Groendyke, who presided throughout the meeting, introduced the speaker of the evening in a graceful manner.

First Policeman
to Kill Bandit
Get a Promotion

(Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18—The first policeman to kill a bandit will be promoted to the promise made by General Butler, in his campaign to clean up this city.

"I am tired of reading of messengers being killed by bandits,"
the general said, in making the announcement. "The $16,000 defense fund donated by policemen for legal protection in event of arrest in performance of duty will be done away with. The city, hereafter, is to defend its own policemen."

County "Held Its Own"
With Rest of State
in Production

FEW OF COUNTIES
FARED AS WELL

Jefferson Grew Little
More Cotton in '23
Than in 1922

Federal statistician W. V. Davidson's report on cotton ginned to January 1, 1924, in Morgan County and in all the counties of Alabama shows this county held its own well as a cotton producing county, compared to the other counties of the state.

During the past year bales ginned to January 1, for this county are 15,146
compared to 18,844, in 1922, while Marengo made only 9,273 bales same year
to 18,406 in 1922. In other words Marengo made more than Morgan's crop in the year 1922 by 62 bales, but the last year 5,873 bales less than Morgan made last year. Jefferson county is one of the few counties showing an increase in cotton production in 1923,
over 1922, the "Imperial" county having had ginned 940 bales to January 1,
of that year to 926 at the same time a year ago. In fact Jefferson seems to be the only county in the state, but Cherokee, Cleburne, Coosa and Pike that ginned more cotton in 1923 than in 1924.

The complete record of Mr. Davidson is as follows:

TEXT IS GIVEN OF
RECOMMENDATIONS

Plans Evolved by the Farm Conference
Made Public

SUGGESTIONS ARE MADE FARMERS

Problems Discussed in the Reports and
Solution Sought

The complete text of the recommendations, made Thursday by the meeting of farmers and business men of Morgan County, at Hartselle follow:

Viewing with concern the ever increasing scarcity of farm labor, the growing menace of insect ravages upon crops, the continual impoverishment of much of the farm lands of Morgan County, due to surface washing, poor soil management and the use of poor grades and an insufficient quantity of commercial fertilizer, and the sending out of the county each year of many thousands of dollars for the purchase of food and feedstuffs that could and should be grown in the county, we as representative citizens of Morgan County, have assembled in conference to seek information and counsel together, and to consider a program of balanced and safe farming which we believe will overcome or offset the evils here noted. To this end we submit the following recommendations and pledge our best efforts to see that they are put into effect, as nearly as possible.

Soil Management

The soil is the direct source of all agricultural products, including the products of livestock. Therefore we recommend that the following methods of conserving and building up the fertility of the soil be put into practice
throughout the county.

1. That all cultivated land having as much as (or more than) 3 per cent slope (three feet fall in 100 ft.) be carefully terraced, broad based terraces having a width of 12 to 18 feet
being used on slopes of less than 15 per cent, and narrow ridge terraces
where the slope is greater than 15 per cent.

2. That all wet lands be drained as fast as conditions will permit, either tile drains or open ditches being used according to conditions of each particular field. There are numerous instances in Morgan County where land that was so wet as to be particularly worthless has by correct drainage become the safest and most dependable land on the farm.)

3. That straw, leaves and pine needles be fully used for bedding stalls for livestock and that all manure about the barnyard be carefully saved and applied to the poorer parts of the farm, preferably under cash or sales crops.

4. That the greatest possible use be made of such soil building legumes as cowpeas, soybeans, velvet beans and lespedeza; that every acre of corn,
with the possible exception of low lands that are fed from the surrounding hills, be planted to beans or peas
along with the corn, and that lands too poor for profitable cultivation be seeded to lespedeza and allowed to stand for two years before being plowed again.

5. That when practicable such winter cover crops as vetch (or rye) be seeded in cotton middles to be plowed
under in the spring.

Cotton

Cotton, being the chief money crop
of Morgan County, should be given very careful consideration. We recommend:

1. That cotton be made a surplus crop, that is, that each farm first make ample provision for growing all the food and feed crops that can be profitably used on the farm, and possibly a surplus for sale, and then grow all the cotton that can be cultivated thoroughly and rapidly and protected from the ravages of insects.

2. That cotton be planted as early as possible.

TEXAS DECLINES
TROOP PRIVILEGE

Big Quantity of Arms
Taken by Rebels
Near Tampico

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—The situation in Mexico, complicated recently by a declaration of a revolutionist
blockade at Tampico, was considered by President Coolidge and his advisers
today at one of the longest cabinet
meetings in recent months.

There were indications more active steps to protect American interests in the blockade ports were considered in the meeting, but cabinet members said
afterwards that any announcement must come from the president. White house officials were silent.

The revolutionary leader, de la Huerta, has been warned the United States will not permit encroachment on its commercial rights in Tampico, but some officials incline to the belief a warning, alone will not be sufficient.

Whether American warships will be sent to the blockaded ports as a precaution is a question no cabinet member would answer after today's session at the white house.

The cabinet had before it the refusal of the acting governor of Texas to permit passage of Mexican federal troops across the state, a privilege requested by the state department at the instance of the Oregon officials in Mexico City.

New Mexico and Arizona already have given such permission for a troop movement within their borders, in order to facilitate Oregon's movements against the rebels in the north, and there was indicated there was still hope here that a similar step might be taken by the state officials of Texas.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18—By Radio
to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram—
The revolutionists dynamited a military freight train, carrying artillery
for the Oregon forces near the station
of Aragon yesterday morning,
according to an official report received from Oregon headquarters at Ira-pato. The train and its entire cargo was destroyed by fire, following the explosion, according to report.

The rebels were supposed to be followers of General Cavazos, who was recently defeated at Pachuca. Passenger trains over the line which ran from Mexico City to Laredo, Texas, were delayed by the wrecking of the train.

Aviators were brought into use by federal forces for the first time yesterday on the Jalisco front. Major Ralph O'Neal, flying one of the newly arrived planes from the United States,
made a scouting trip over the district.
He remained in the air three hours
and had no trouble, whatever.

Fighting has been going on at the Carnero, Pueblo and Vera Cruz fronts
for the past several days.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 18—
Rebel troops, under Felix Garza captured large quantities of arms and ammunition consigned to the Mexican federal forces at Tampico, according to a report brought to representatives of the de la Huerta forces here, by a courier from Southern Tamaulipas
last night.

All revolutionary bands between Sernardo and Victoria have been ordered to mobilize to assist in an attack at Tampico.

The revolutionists will move upon
the city from three sides, it is stated,
and any attempt to reinforce the garrison will result in cutting the railway between Victoria and Tampico.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 18—Permission to transport Mexican federal forces across Texas was refused today
by Acting Governor T. W. Davis, in a telegram to Secretary of State Hughes. Possibility of trouble with Mexican residents on the border prompted the refusal, the acting governor said.

Great admirers of Charles Dawes are said to be naming their baby girls "Helenmaria."

A flock of children, dirty, disheveled, grimy, crowded on a small stairway spotted with brown saliva. Cars in the street fifteen feet away groaned past with occupants doing civic work outside the city.

NOT SPECULATION, BUT PRODUCING IS THE THING

Investigations made recently by the United States Department of Agriculture show that many of the farmers who have failed in the great farming sections of the West and Middle West worked their financial ruin through speculation. "The inquiry revealed," states one reputable journal, "that out of the 108,000 sold-out farmers (in a given district) 43,000 lost their acres as the result of buying land in the great land boom, when the wheat lands, the short grass country, and the hog and hominy belt went land-mad."

Because of such speculations many were hit very hard by the after-war deflation policy of the government.

In fifteen states surveyed by the Department of Agriculture in an effort to get at the bottom of the distress among the farmers resulted in the discovery that 11,000 tenant farmers lost their stock and farm implements "as a result of unwise investments in enterprises other than farming."

The people who hope to benefit the farmers by various kinds of legislation, manifestly, cannot hope to help those who speculate too much.

The farmers can depend upon men in all walks of life helping them in a pinch—for farming is indeed the basic industry—but those who have bought and sold "to get gain" and then failed, can expect no more consideration than if they had been mechanics, professional men or capitalists.

There is an old saying: "Let not the cobbler go beyond his last," which has an application to all who depend on speculation rather than producing.

SCIENCE VERSUS SELFISH INTERESTS

The papers are carrying many news accounts of late of efforts to be made by the whiskey people to modify the Volstead Act. The paid agents of Barleycorn are to petition the national platform committees of the two great parties asking that "wet" planks be placed in the platforms of the parties. What senators and representatives as seem agreeable to a return of whiskey by the near beer, light wine route are busy doing the will of their masters.

On the other hand, the advocates of a saloonless nation, sooner or later, are marshalling their forces. A great national convention has just closed in Washington, which was presided over by an eminent bishop, and that body of men are as determined as ever to disallow the opening of the grave of John Barleycorn.

The "modifiers," those who wish to increase the alcoholic content of liquors held as legal, are moved by greed, abnormal appetites and pure unadulterated selfishness, are doomed to disappointment. Because they have overlooked or at least seem to have overlooked the fact they are trying to put poison to their neighbor's lips. A striking statement of the scientific conclusion that alcohol is a poison appeared recently in a decision of a judge who spoke as follows of whiskey:

"A substance taken internally which is injurious to health and often fatal to life."

"It does not require unusual investigation or research in the present era to ascertain the fact that a corn liquor is exceedingly deleterious, noxious, pernicious, hurtful and destructive," the court added.

secured the conviction of the bootlegger during the trial had referred to liquor as being "poison." The supreme court judge held the solicitor was exactly right in describing "spirits" as poison, and then added the remarks given above.

In a word, the pro-Barleycorn people propose to put selfish instincts against the dictates of reason.

THE YOUNG MAN FROM TENNESSEE

A boy grew to young manhood upon a West Tennessee farm. He saw the rains cut the red earth into deep and unproductive gullies and assumed, as his father did, that nothing could be done about it. He saw the crop returns grow smaller year by year, the farm buildings become more and more dilapidated, the fare become poorer and less nourishing, life developed into a more acquiescence in misfortune.

For a few simple implements the farm work was done with tools which the boy's father made with an ax and a draw knife. But mostly the labor was manual, heavy, continuous drudgery. There were spells of rest. Father and son were glad to sit through most of the day upon the steps of the country store. But there was little rest at any time for the boy's mother. She had to stoop over a hot stove in a kitchen which gave off heat as reluctantly as the inside of a steam boiler. She did the family washing in an iron kettle out in the muddy barnyard. She looked forward to Sunday when she could sit half-unconscious in church.

The father died and the mother went away to live out her days with a daughter. The farm was sold to satisfy debts. The boy, now 27, struck out for himself. In time he wandered into an industrial center and though he was unskilled, he obtained a job in a manufacturing plant.

The work in the factory was carried on by what is called mass production. It required attention, precision, continuous effort for eight hours. Yet when the young Tennessean left the factory at the end of the day he did not feel wearied. He grew stouter with good food. He became enormously interested in the new life. When he received his pay he counted it over and over in wonder. It was always more than was returned to his father after the crops had been sold and settlement had been made with the storekeeper.

One day the Southerner bought a magazine at a news stand and found in it a long, lugubrious article describing how mass production in manufacturing was ruining the country, enslaving the workers, draining the vitality from them, squeezing them into lives of narrowness, destroying their native hopefulness and robbing them of their individuality. The article closed with an expression of confidence that the workers would some time rebel against such conditions and compel a return to the form of existence of their fathers.

The young fellow out of Tennessee could hardly sleep that night for laughing.—Toledo Blade.

MORE IMPATIENT THAN SPEED CRAZY

Are we Americans really speed crazy? We're accused often enough, and most of us believe it. But just go into the downtown district and watch the pedestrians, especially those who amble along on the wrong side of the walk, balling up traffic. Watch them in the busy hours—and you will begin to revise your notions about speed mania.

Occasionally one of the pedestrians hustles so fast he almost knocks his neighbors down. But this speeder is exhibiting a spurt of speed, not a chronic condition. He's hustling to get to the bank before it closes—or hurrying to some other destination because he loafed too long previously and got started late.

People, when on their feet, are as slow as they were in grandpa's day—probably slower. That's because movement on foot requires expenditure of personal effort. When the average person gets into an auto he wants to speed. And that's because movement by auto doesn't require much effort. If it were as much work as walking, most autos would rarely exceed five miles an hour.

The efficiency experts in many cases have rigged up systems so people have to work at a certain speed or get buried under coming streams of lumber, packages or machinery in process of assembly.

But most of us are rarely anxious to speed up except when there is real need of speed. We hurry our eating and fret ourselves into nervous impatience because we are held back by the element of time in reaching amusements or destinations and events that excite our curiosity. This, of course, is the worst kind of speed—the sort that shortens life and destroys the health.

Naturalness is impatient rather than speedy.

Black-Draught Recommended by an Arkansas Farmer Who Has Used It, When Needed, for 25 Years.

Hatfield, Ark.—Mr. G. W. Parsons, a well-known farmer on Route 1, this place, says: "I keep Black-Draught in my home all the time. It is the best all-around medicine I have ever found for the liver and for constipation. We began using it 25 or more years ago and have used it whenever needed since. I have never found any other medicine as good for constipation, and that was what I suffered with till I began using Black-Draught. Black-Draught corrected this condition, and now we use it for the liver and for indigestion—a tight and sluggish feeling after meals, for bad taste in the mouth and sour stomach."

"My wife uses it for headache and biliousness. It sets on our shelf and we don't let it get out. It has been a great help to us. I believe we have a great deal of sickness is caused by hurried eating and constipation, and Black-Draught, if taken right, will correct this condition."

WOOL MOIRE AND SILK ARE POPULAR

Just as Suitable
Now as They Will
Be in the Spring

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

AMONG the smart materials of the season is moire, which contains a bit of wool for extra warmth, and silk which exploits a gaily flowered pattern.

Both of these fabrics are suitable for wear now as well as late into the Spring, and both the materials are so effective that the frock can afford to be simple of line.

The black moire at the right is essentially simple, with its straight skirt and simple tunic. White rabbit makes the soft band collar, and the narrow tie has Chinese motives embroidered on the ends.

The flowered silk frock is not quite so simple in effect as the moire, but it is very easy to make. The black silk background is sprinkled in flowers of soft red, yellow and blue, with green stems. The body of the frock is perfectly straight of line and narrow. The apron curves up at the front where it is sewed to the frock. It is slit in at either side and gathered. The straight side bands extend around as apron strings, buttoning at the back. The back of the frock is perfectly plain, the apron ending at the sides.

An ecru organdie vest appears beneath the slit at the front, while ecru organdie also makes the sleeve puffs.

YOUR HEALTH

When You Have "Fake" Doctor
Your Life Is in Danger

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RECENTLY there have been many newspaper accounts about "diploma mills" and fraudulent doctors. Great campaigns have been inaugurated in New York and elsewhere to clean house and by so doing to get rid of illegal practitioners.

Medicine has become a very complex thing. It is not an art it would make no difference, I suppose, where it might be acquired. The early practitioner in America was a man who had learned what to do for this, that and the other disease by observing the methods of an older doctor.

When it came to knowing about diseases, too, he had little if any more knowledge than our great-grandmothers had. He had no instruments of precision, no knowledge of chemistry—he had nothing to depend upon except the obvious things an experienced observer could teach him. He applied to the cure of human ailments such measures as experience had taught. Medical practice was purely the application of an art. In no sense whatever could it be considered a science.

During the past half century, and particularly during the past twenty years, everything has changed. The significance of germ life as a factor in disease production has revolutionized medicine and taken the nightmare out of surgery. The development of pathology has given the educated doctor intimate knowledge of the objective effects of disease.

Progress in chemistry has made clear that chemical processes within the body have everything to do with digestion, elimination of wastes and all the wonderful, little changes associated with life and function. The laboratory worker has solved many of the mysterious workings of the protective agencies of the body.

Do These Balancing Exercises for Poise and Good Carriage

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

AS all my regular readers must know by this time, I consider that poise and good carriage are absolutely necessary possessions if a woman is to be attractive to look upon.

I name the two together, because they naturally go hand in hand. The woman who carries herself badly cannot show perfect poise and self-possession.

There's something about holding your shoulders back and looking the world in the face that braces your morale and makes you feel always the better for it.

Now, if you have acquired the habit of holding your head and shoulders in the proper way, you will find this line much more inclined to firm straightness than the sagging that pretty women dread.

This in itself should be sufficient inducement to any woman to make the necessary efforts to acquire grace and poise and proper carriage. Besides, you will find, to your delight, the job is a pleasure rather than drudgery, and you'll feel so much better that you'll be amply repaid for any small effort it may cost you.

Here's a balancing exercise that will do much to improve the line of your shoulders and chin and neck.

Stand erect, heels close together, shoulders back and chin in. Raise your arms forward and then upward. Hold them straight above your head, palms facing each other, and with a space between them just the width of your shoulders.

Draw your shoulders well back and raise your right leg backward. Be sure to keep both knees straight. Hold this position a few seconds, then replace arms and legs to first position. Repeat, using other leg.

Do this over a few times and you will find it easier to acquire the correct carriage.

able to meet the situation of the moment. You simply can't feel embarrassed and ill at ease if you carry yourself in a straight, easy manner, with your chin well up. And if you hold your shoulders out and your chin up and slightly in your shoulders will take care of themselves. You can forget them and let your mind be free and eager to meet the situation at hand.

You may have noticed that the unfortunate woman who seems self-conscious or embarrassed are invariably the ones who hang their heads just a trifle too much and who allow their chins to point down in a dejected manner.

Another beauty line which every woman wants to make as perfect as possible is the line of the throat. There is nothing lovelier than a clear, firm line from the throat down to the base of the chin. It must be firm and clear cut, with the proper hint of a soft curve if the

WINIFRED BLACK APPLAUDS WISDOM OF A Very Clever Wife

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

THE clever man has the cleverest little darling of a wife you ever saw.

She's pretty and she's sweet-tempered and she's witty and she isn't timid at all. But she's just clever enough to make people believe that she is timid and when she says something very daring indeed in her soft little voice that is exactly like the coo of a dove, you're so astonished that you don't know what to do.

That's fun.

Besides all these things the clever man's clever little wife is practical.

She married her husband when he was young and poor and she made her own frocks and took care of her own baby and did her own housework, but she didn't stop at these things. She studied and read and listened to her husband and kept up with him.

She just listened and listened.

And now that he's getting up in the world—she's going up with him.

And everyone says how lucky he is to have such a wife to help him in his career.

And he is lucky—and he knows it.

But the other day the clever little wife was cleverer than ever.

The genius came to town. Oh, a regular genius, temperamental and exotic and queer and "peculiar" and all the rest of it.

He thinks like a flash of lightning and he talks like Niagara Falls.

Winifred Black

And the other day while he was waiting for the clever man the man's clever wife came in and met the genius and welcomed him and had him sit down and she asked him a question—just one—mind you, and the genius started to talk.

And the clever man's clever wife opened her eyes and let them sparkle and she threw back her head and laughed and she shook her head and sighed and she looked sad and she looked worried and she looked delighted and she looked astonished and she never spoke one single word—after the first question.

She never tried to ask. She just listened and listened and listened.

And when the clever man came she said "good-by" with big eyes of wonder and a sort of gasp of bewildered appreciation. And when the door closed behind her the genius turned to the clever man.

He grasped the clever man by the shoulder with one hand and patted him on the back with the other.

"No wonder you're a success, my boy," he said. "Your wife is the most brilliant woman I've met in years."

And he meant it!

And he was right.

She was brilliantly clever and she showed it by the way she handled him.

She knew he liked to talk and she let him talk—besides he had things to say that she wanted to hear and she wasn't trying to impress him.

No wonder he thought she was clever.

It takes a wise woman—and a wise man too—to listen when the listening is good.

Getting There Quicker

Yes, the clever man would have succeeded anyhow because he's a hard worker as well as a clear, steady thinker—but he'll arrive ten years earlier than he would if he had a silly little goose of a vain wife who didn't know enough to hold her tongue and let somebody else do the talking when the somebody else really knows how to talk and wants to do it.

A half hour of silence will sometimes buy more than ten hours of conversation.

Did you ever notice it?

THE "CHOCOLATE" ISLAND LEASED FROM CANADA.

If you were suddenly asked to locate Anticosti, could you do it? It's a huge island as big as the State of Connecticut. It is not much more than a thousand miles from New York City and it has a population of 250 persons. It is sometimes known as the chocolate island, but not because it produces chocolate.

To do away with mystery, Anticosti is located in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and it belongs to the Province of Quebec. It was discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1534 and was named by him Assomption. It was ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763 and in 1774 became part of Canada.

The island is thickly wooded and being uninhabited save for a few score fishermen squatting at the two harbors, Ellis Bay and Fox Island, it is simply teeming with wild animals, including bears, foxes, wolves, deer, etc. It was a favorite hunting ground of the sportsmen of Quebec for years until the wild life was all but extinct.

About twenty-five years ago Menier, the French chocolate manufacturer, leased the entire island from the Province of Quebec, including the fishing rights. As the island is 15 miles long by 40 miles wide, this gave him quite an estate. He built himself a castle on it, warned off the sportsmen and converted it into a giant game preserve. Unmolested, the animals multiplied and Anticosti is again full of wild life.

This vast island is a dangerous obstruction to navigation in the St. Lawrence, and is given a wide berth by the ocean liners going to and from Montreal. As the St. Lawrence Coast is studded with lighthouses and about one-third of the population of the island are light keepers and their families. This does not prevent many a fisherman from being wrecked on its shores. There are no roads across the island, nothing but trails, except for a few miles around the Menier estate.

Lillian Displayed Her Intuition.

SO this was what Mother Graham had been concealing in the back of her wise old brain all the time—this scheme for apparently combating any tentative proposal of Harriet Brathwaite to take her husband's children into her own home.

Lillian displayed her intuition. She glanced swiftly at Lillian, and caught in her eyes the same admiration of the elder woman's astuteness which was mirrored in her own. That Mother Graham knew the hereditary little quirk in her daughter's mental processes which made opposition necessary to her enthusiastic adoption of any plan, was something she had just made known to her.

Although, characteristically, she had laid the inheritance of the trait to the other side of the house, she may have been right—Dick's father had been dead long before I came into the family—but anyone who ever has enjoyed Mother Graham's intimate acquaintance knows that in her son's slangy parlance, "an army mule has nothing on Mother for obstinacy."

It was not for me, however, to make any comment upon that portion of her very best nagging manner. "You act as if you were afraid you might have to have—"

She broke off the sentence abruptly, while the flush on her face deepened, and I knew that the late good feeling between us had tripped over her crabbedness, and saved her from an ill-natured and false accusation which would have lingered festering in my memory.

"No, I don't mean that," she muttered hastily. "You act like a half-grown idiot a lot of times, but nobody can accuse you of being stingy or ungenerous. But if you can't see that we mustn't wait until Harriet or Edwin has a chance to say anything that we must say things first then you're even more of a baby than I've thought you."

A gleam of intelligence. "Oh!" I exclaimed, as if suddenly enlightened. "You want me to—"

"I don't want you to do anything," she snapped. "At first," she added concedingly. "I'll do all the talking that's necessary, but I want you and Dick to back me up as soon as I stop."

"Pardon me," Lillian interrupted in a placating tone. "May I ask you a question?"

"Of course, a dozen," my mother-in-law rejoined graciously, turning to her.

"I may be mistaken," Lillian went on modestly, "but aren't you planning to convey the idea, by your words and manner and by the attitude of Dicky and Maddy, that the children have come to their natural home, to their grandmother and the farmhouse, and that any attempt to take them anywhere else would be a usurpation of your natural rights and your wishes?"

"My mother-in-law cast a quick, shrewd glance at her.

"I'm not so sure that you wouldn't have been burned as a witch if you had lived in Salem three hundred years ago," she said eagerly. "I wish you could give Margaret some of your intuition. Yes, that is exactly what I am planning to do, and I am going to keep it up until Harriet is so on edge that she will move heaven and earth and the other place to keep those children."

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

Fish Facts for Family Financiers.

TO those living by sea, lake, river or busy brook water foods are always available. To the inlander canned fish is a possibility, and in some large places fish-special trains bring a choice to the markets. If not every day, at least twice a week. And there is also a supply of smoked and dried fish that is by no means to be forgotten, for under right treatment dried fish forms a very great food factor.

In Eastern markets codfish, bluefish, weakfish and skinned overcod are other fish of excellence. In the West salmon, halibut, striped bass and barracuda bring top prices. On the Great Lakes the whitefish is prime favorite. In the South, the housewife insists on red snappers, pompanos, sea trout and Spanish mackerel. The insistence on only the choicest fish brings up the price. Fish frozen commercially for market retains all its goodness, but it must be cooked immediately after being thawed out in cold water. It is the fresh fish that is frozen and thawed and frozen again that gives frozen fish its bad reputation. Fish canned by reputable canneries is a perfect product in the present day and may be used in any dish where fresh fish is called for.

In stuffing a fish for baking leave the head on but remove the eyes. By filling the head with the stuffing there will be enough to go round. Fish should always be put on to boil in cold water. In this way the center is cooked and done by the time the outside is cooked. A teaspoonful of vinegar added to the water firms the fish.

Flumm Haddie French Fashion. Soak a good, thick fish twenty minutes in warm water, drain it, lay it in a baking dish, sprinkle it with one onion, a seeded pepper and a little parsley all chopped fine, dot it with little lumps of butter, dust it with pepper, then pour over it a mixture of five minutes. Lift the oyster sauce over the oysters, then turn them cold, garnished with lemon quarters and cress.

Spanish Pickled Oysters. Soak a cupful of olive oil, a half cupful of vinegar, two teaspoonsful of salt, three of chopped peppers, spoonfuls of peppercorns, two tablespoonfuls of sweet marjoram and a dash of garlic for two minutes, and add six dozen oysters. Cook the mixture five minutes, lift the oyster sauce over the oysters, then turn them cold, garnished with lemon quarters and cress.

COTACIO LITERARY CLUB.

Mrs. E. R. Wolfe entertained the Cotacio Literary Club this week, her home on Johnston street being very attractive with potted plants and cut flowers adding a bright effect. Negro antiques were told in response to roll call. "Octavius Roy Cohen and his works" was the subject for discussion and it was divided into two parts, the first part of the program being on the life of this present day writer and the second part taking up some of his stories, most of which have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post.

Mrs. W. B. Robertson led the round table on the life and interesting events of the life of the author. Two songs, in negro dialect, were beautifully sung by Miss Imogene Winton after which Mrs. W. H. Winton gave a synopsis of "The Late Lamented," a recent story of Mr. Cohen's. The program had a fitting close with two readings, also in dialect, by Miss Lula Garnett.

Mrs. Wolfe served a delicious luncheon course and she was assisted by Mrs. J. T. Nelson and Mrs. W. B. Robertson.

MUSICAL AT AUSTINVILLE.

The Austinville quartet, composed of Tenny Sparkman, S. S. Howel, Avery Roberts and R. Mainard, under the direction of Professor Mainard of the Austinville school, rendered a lovely musicale at the school building in Austinville on Thursday evening.

Assisting them in a very capable manner were, Mrs. Baird, of Anniston, a visitor here, who gave vocal and instrumental solos, Miss Sarah English in an instrumental solo and also a delightful reading; also others who contributed their voices in readings and songs, among these being several little tots.

A nice sum was realized and this was donated to the Missionary Society.

PINK TEA FOR MRS. PICKENS, MRS. ROAN HOSTESS

Much of the sadness due to the fact that Mrs. B. B. Pickens, one of our beloved matrons, will leave the city at an early date to make her home in Birmingham, was thrown off like a cloak, and all enjoyed themselves at the tea given in her honor on Thursday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock by Mrs. A. M. Roan.

The pretty interior of the Roan home on Johnston street was a bow of pink carnations with a background of southern smilax being noticeable in places.

Mrs. R. G. Cortner received the guests at the front door and she wore a pretty sleeveless afternoon gown. Mrs. Roan, first in the receiving line, was dressed in green pan velvet and Mrs. Morris, next in line, was striking in a rose evening gown beaded in cut steel and wore a corsage of sweetheart roses. The honoree was attractive in a French gown beaded in gold beads. Showing the guests from the living room to the dining room were Mrs. H. R. Davis in a rose gown, and Mrs. J. L. Gunter in a dress of soft gray.

The tea table placed at one side of the dining room, was especially pretty with a large silver basket of pink carnations and pink candles set on either end, shed a soft light on the silver tea sets. Presiding over this table were Mrs. E. H. Allison and Mrs. E. C. Payne, both wearing simple black afternoon dresses. Those serving in the dining room were Miss Elizabeth Wallace, who wore a blue beaded dress; Miss Mary Louise Green, in a pink evening gown; Miss Annie B. Malone, attired in an orchid evening gown; Miss Mabel Pride, in a white sequins over shell pink silk, and Miss Mary Harvey, attractive in black velvet with touches of white lace. Miss Sabine Dupont wore a lovely rose creation and she stood at the door where the guests departed to bid them goodbye.

According to the expressions of the one hundred and fifty guests who called, this was an unusually pretty affair.

ALEXANDER-COBB.

A wedding that comes as quite a surprise to the wide circle of friends of the bride in the Twin Cities, was that of Miss Bessie Cobb, now of Prattville, but recently of Albany, to Mr. Cecil Alexander, of Prattville, Ala., which was quietly solemnized at the Methodist church of Prattville.

The young people even surprised their parents and friends as when they left home, they said they were going to Sunday school as was their custom and when they returned they were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander.

Miss Cobb was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cobb and numbers her friends by her acquaintances here as well as in her present home. Mr. Alexander is quite a promising young lawyer and is of a very influential family.

THURSDAY CLUB.

Mrs. Sara Jeffries was hostess to the members of the Thursday Club this week at her home on Canal street with Mrs. Montgomery as a guest.

Bridge was the diversion of the afternoon and the club prize, paraffin glasses, were awarded to Mrs. Bloodworth. Mrs. Montgomery received a box of face powder as a souvenir.

A fruit salad was served in grape fruit baskets tied with green ribbon and supplementing this were sandwiches, cake and coffee.

MARRIED LADIES BRIDGE CLUB.

At the meeting of the Married Ladies Bridge Club on Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. F. D. Peebles was hostess and also lucky contestant at the bridge game, receiving the club prize.

Other than club members, those present were, Mrs. Leroy McEntire and Mrs. J. Y. Hamil, the former winning the guest souvenir, a box of powder.

Mrs. A. B. Sparkman and Miss Daisy Reynolds of Zanesville, Ohio, are the guests of relatives and friends in Albany-Decatur.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. W. P. Reeves was hostess to Band No. 3 of the W. M. U. of the Central Baptist church at her home on Grant street.

Mrs. E. M. Espey led the devotional. Plans for the new year were discussed. After the business meeting was over a delicious salad course was served. Fourteen ladies were present.

AMUSEMENTS

What the Press-Agents Say

Thomas H. Ince has picked a winner and produced a thrilled in his film version of "The Hottentot". Adapted from the stage play of the same name in which Willie Collier scored his greatest success, the picture is a novel combination of hilarious comedy and tense drama.

Just by way of good measure, Ince has filmed a steeplechase which could not be included in the stage play, and is a thrilling achievement of daring riding and spectacular photography. It took a month and 200,000 celluloid feet to catch the hurdling horses and their riders in action rapid enough to satisfy the producer.

From beginning to end "The Hottentot" is crowded with laughs. Sam's introduction to Peggy Fairfax, with whom he promptly falls in love, is one of the funniest incidents ever screened. The horsefearing yachtsman has just shaken hands with her when her horse runs away. Sam jumps on the running board of his automobile to pursue her. When the car hits a rut he is thrown into the air and lands on the back of a riderless horse that has been plunging along in mad fright beside the auto.

By sheerest accident the terrified yachtsman on the equally terrified horse manages to pull the girl from her mount before he himself is thrown violently over an embankment and crowned with a flying horseshoe from the violently pawing horse that has just run away.

After this absurd scene which every one believes has been a brilliant rescue, Sam is mistaken for a famous steeplechase rider of his same name. His struggles to extricate himself from a situation as embarrassing as it is dangerous, in view of the fact he can't ride at all, make Sam's life miserable from that time on. In the end he either has to admit himself a coward to the girl he loves or ride the wild Hottentot in a break-neck steeplechase.

"The Hottentot" will be shown at the Princess theater today and Saturday.

Near the last of this month railroad "Y," secretary Richardson, of Chicago will be here at which time it is expected plans will be accepted, and bids sought for the auditorium and gymnasium. At a recent meeting of the executive board of the association, which is composed of E. R. Wolfe, C. W. Matthews, A. H. Hoff and C. J. Randolph, the "Y" budget amounting to about $16,000 for the present year was adopted. Larger activities for this year are to be carried out, than ever before. Last year this association put on the most extensive program in its history, and had more members than ever, by several hundred.

The membership goal for this year is 2,000.

Set yourself straight
on these Bran facts!

If you eat bran it is because you seek relief from constipation and toxic poisoning!

To get the relief your physician will tell you that bran will give—you must be certain to get Kellogg's Bran, BECAUSE it is ALL BRAN! That is the kind your physician intends you to eat.

You only delay positive relief when you eat foods with a partial bran content, because they can only help you in proportion to the amount of bran they contain! You haven't time to waste on 25 per cent or 50 per cent relief when you know that Kellogg's Bran will give you 100 per cent relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Every day's delay lets your condition become worse! Pills and cathartics can only aggravate distressing conditions. Part bran foods cannot permanently help you! They do not have the necessary bulk or roughage that makes ALL BRAN positive in its mechanical action! That is why Kellogg's Bran is a necessity!

Kellogg's Bran—because it is ALL BRAN—is GUARANTEED to give you permanent relief if you will eat two tablespoonsfuls each day, or as much with each meal in chronic cases!

If you would realize how delicious Kellogg's Bran is—cooked, krumbled and ready to eat—and what it means to your health—you would not lose a minute starting to eat it! All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran in the Red and Green package.

Kellogg's

Text Is Given of Recommendations

as the soil is warm enough for it to grow, the last days of April and up till May 10th being preferable if weather conditions are favorable, and that only seed of proved high-yielding quality be planted. Some good varieties are Cook, Cleveland and Acala.

3. That in fertilizing cotton, the recommendations of the Alabama Experiment station, which have been successfully demonstrated in nearly every section of the county, be followed closely. They are as follows:

(a) For most cotton land, per acre 200 pounds acid phosphate, 100 pounds nitrate of soda and 25 pounds muriate of potash. The acid and potash to be applied at or just before planting time slightly deeper than the seed are planted; about 20 pounds of the nitrate to be mixed with the seed and drilled in with them, the remainder either to be mixed and put in with the acid and potash or applied as a side dressing at the first cultivation.

(b) For land that has grown lespedeza or clover for two or more years or which is otherwise excessively rich in organic matter, and on which cotton grows very large; per acre, 15 or 20 pounds nitrate of soda mixed with the seed to give the cotton a quick start while the nights are cool, 25 pounds muriate of potash and from 300 to 500 pounds acid phosphate to balance the excess of organic nitrogen stimulate heavy fruiting and hasten maturity.

(c) The farmers buy fertilizer materials and do their own mixing so as to suit the fertilizer to the soil and in order to save money in the purchase of same.

4. The boll weevil: The first and chief measures for the production of cotton in spite of the boll weevil are correct and liberal fertilization and rapid and thorough cultivation. In the matter of poisoning, we endorse the recommendations of the Southern Experiment Stations which are as follows:

(a) That one application be made at the first indication of square formation, if 20 or more weevils per acre can be found. This application may be straight calcium arsenate applied by machinery or from a bag; or it may be a home-mixed molasses preparation, using 1 pound of calcium arsenate, 1 gallon of molasses and 1 gallon of water, and be sprinkled on, a few drops to the tip of each plant, with a home made mop, using about a gallon of the mixture per acre, on the day it is mixed.

(b) After fruiting begins only calcium arsenate dust should be used and that with machinery suitable for the purpose. Bag dusting is not effective. Begin when 1-10 of the squares show weevil punctures and make three applications at intervals of four or five days, using 5 pounds of poison per acre, each application. Thereafter, dust should be used only when one square out of 5 or 6 shows a weevil puncture until a full crop of bolls becomes well grown.

(c) The cooperation of all the people in the community frequently makes weevil control more effective.

The Cotton Leaf Caterpillar

This pest is not likely to reappear in Morgan County this year, but as a precaution we recommend that farmers who have rank-growing cotton watch it closely and report to the County Agent the first appearance of worms; also that in case of their re-appearance the business men and farmers join in a vigorous campaign of poisoning.

A Supply of Poison on Every Farm
As a measure of safety, we recommend that every farmer buy this winter, while the price is reasonable, as much as two pounds or more calcium arsenate for each acre of cotton he expects to plant. This poison is useful for the control of bean beetles and potato beetles, as well as cotton pests.

Food and Feed Crops

Corn. 1. Every farmer should plan to produce all the corn he can use profitably as a side dressing when the corn is from 2 to 3 feet high. No other fertilizer should be used except 100 pounds of acid phosphate for the benefit of the peas or beans growing with the corn.

3. A substantial increase in the yield of corn can be secured by the use of field selected seed of the best varieties. Therefore we recommend that every farmer make a regular practice of selecting seed in the field or buying from some one who has done so. Among the best varieties are Neal's Paymaster, Hastings, Marlboro and Mosby's.

Small Grain and Hay Crops

1. There should be an increased acreage in small grain, and all the low lands in small grains should have lespedeza or red clover and timothy seeded in the early spring to make hay crops following the grain.

2. Every farmer should produce at least 2 tons of hay for each horse, mule or cow, or their equivalent in young stock. Lespedeza, clover and timothy, beans and peas are our best hay crops.

Garden and Orchard

for the holding down of expenses, the promotion of health, and the increased pleasure or rural life, we recommend:

1. That each family have a large garden well fertilized, well cultivated and well stocked vegetables all the time that the weather will permit.

2. That the time 4, calcium arsenate 1, sulphur 1, mixture be regularly used for the control of the bean beetle.

3. That each family have a good orchard with a succession of fruits from early till late, that the orchard be expected to produce fruit rather than corn, cotton, hay or pasture, that the orchard be regularly fertilized, cultivated, pruned and sprayed. (Ask for Alabama Extension Circular No. 51) on the home orchard.

Poultry

We recommend. 1. That each farm keep 50 to 100 or more hens, that as fast as possible all mixed and mongrel stuff be replaced with purebreds.

2. That all new poultry houses be constructed according to plans that can be secured from the Extension Service (ask for them); and that old houses be remodeled, where practicable, to conform as nearly as possible to these plans.

3. That a supply of green feed be provided for chickens 12 months in the year, that where possible a well balanced dry mash be kept before hens at all times and that a limited grain ration be supplied, since this method of feeding will produce most eggs, especially during the season of the year when eggs are high priced. (Ask for bulletins on feeding and housing poultry.)

4. That in addition to the above general recommendations, not less than 4 or 5 special demonstration flocks be established in the county with individuals who will cooperate closely with the County Agent and the poultry specialist of Auburn and keep accurate records for 12 months or more.

Dairying

Millions of dollars are sent out of Alabama every year for dairy products. Many of the citizens of Albany and Decatur eat butter and drink milk that were produced in Tennessee, and pay a good price for them. No line of farming will build up land faster than dairying. We recommend; that every farmer who owns his own land and lives near a railroad or a pike give careful study to the matter of milking a few good cows and selling milk, or selling cream and feeding the skim milk to calves, pigs and chickens, and saving this manure carefully, for the enrichment of his land. This will give him a direct cash income, from cream, with an indirect cash income from the animals or products grown on the milk and from the increased fertility of the land. Many tenant farmers could milk cows profitably.

2. That only good cows be kept, and that these cows be tested for butterfat production at regular intervals; also that these cows be bred to the best pure bred sires obtainable, so as to continually improve the production qualities of the herds.

3. That a number of trials of the Central of Georgia Ry. picture mixture of lespedeza 10 pounds carpet grass, 5 pounds, and dallis grass, 3 pounds per acre be made in the low lands of the county.

Swine Production

There is no pressing need for the production of swine for the general market at this time, but we do recommend:

1. That every farmer produce enough for his own family meat supply.

2. That those properly located produce enough to supply our local markets for a good portion of the year.

3. That green pastures and mineral mixtures be provided for all hogs.

4. That only pure bred or high grade hogs be produced.

Labor Supply and Farm Machinery

To keep labor on the farm, it is necessary to make on the farm both attractive and profitable. To this we recommend:

1. That each farm have a well balanced program that will keep the soil fertile and have something to sell all the year round, so that labor may be regularly employed and may earn a good income.

2. That the largest practicable use be made of farm machinery, as this economizes labor, lessens drudgery and also increases the return that may go to the laborer.

3. That where practicable, light water and other labor saving devices be placed in the farm homes.

Marketing

We recommend the cooperative marketing of the main sales crops of the farmer, and the cooperative buying of such generally used supplies as enter directly and vitally into the cost and success of production, such as fertilizer, lime, etc.

Seed Breeding

Realizing that improved seed are as important in crop production as improved animals in livestock or dairy production, and that seed grown locally are better than those brought from another climate, we recommend:

1. That several farmers in Morgan County, who are interested enough to study the science of seed breeding and take pains to do accurate work, establish seed breeding farms and make a specialty of producing high class farm seeds.

2. That the farmers of Morgan County patronize such seed breeders in order to improve their own crops and to insure the success of the seed farms.

Boys and Girl's Club Work

Whereas the farm boys and girls are the hope of the country, to whom we must look for the better rural civilization of tomorrow, we pledge our support to an active agricultural club program in Morgan County, and call upon every agency in the county to render such support as may be necessary to give the boys and girls of Morgan County every opportunity to make the best and most successful citizens.

ROADS ARE ROUGH

Upon his recent return from a trip to Trinity Dr. F. L. Chenault, who lately recovered from a slight illness, stated that "no sure way is now open from the Twin Cities to Trinity."

The physician said the road straight west from Moulton street in Albany, known as the Holland road, was not passable, and that the Courtland pike, from which a road leads to Trinity, some miles out, is almost impassable on account of a big wash-out.

Newspaper Fears Small Pay Will Corrupt German Police

BERLIN—Bemoaning the fate of the state security police, who it contends, are underpaid, the local Anzeiger says if this policy is continued the German guardians of the law soon will find themselves accepting "graft" whenever it is offered to them.

The privates receive about 25 cents a day with an allowance of bread. Two cents additional per day are given for each child in a policeman's family.

A Cow can give milk to her fullest capacity only when fed the right proportion or balance of milk-making materials. Milk is made up of Protein, Carbohydrates, Fat, Minerals and Water, in proportions that, practically speaking, can't be varied. Instead of making imperfect milk, a poorly fed cow gives less milk.

Feed Purina Cow Chow

and your cows will get all the Protein and Calcium needed to balance your Carbohydrate roughness.

All we ask is that you give Purina Cow Chow a trial and let your milk scales show you why you should keep on feeding it.
